Summer winds down in Pohnpei

Inaugural "Growing Up" Camp reaches outer-island boys

Moch Island, Chuuk, Federated States of Micronesia - July 23, 2010 – The inaugural Camp Boys to Men: Mortlocks Style was held June 16-19, 2010 on Moch Island in the Mortlocks region of Chuuk State. Peace Corps Volunteers Alex Plum (M75, Michigan), Trevor Ramsey-Macomber (M76, New York), and Dan Lebednik (M76, Pennsylvania) directed the camp, with the assistance of four men facilitators (camp counselors) from the islands of Satowan, Kuttu, Ta, and Moch of the Satowan Atoll, Mortlocks Region, Chuuk State, Federated States of Micronesia. 22 boys from those

Pakin Atoll builds basketball court with Australian aid

Apurou D. Johnson

The community of Pakin Atoll, with financial assistance from the Australian Embassy, constructed it's first-ever basketball court on July 19th. The project represented the first cooperation between the Australian Embassy and Pakin and involved nearly a hundred different people.

The Australian Embassy, acting through its Direct Aid Program, awarded Pakin's NGO, Pakin Community Association, Inc., a grant to build a basketball court "to serve as a recreational facility for the youth of Pakin." Like many rural communities of Pohnpei, Pakin's majority consists of youths aged under 25 and severely lacks facilities for its isolated area. Addressing this need for development remains a key focus of both outer island communities and the Australian Embassy.

Several parties assisted in the primary coordination of the project, including EMC Construction and Peace Corps Volunteer Apurou D. Johnson. The Governor's Office allowed Pakin to use one of its ships for the transport of building materials to the atoll and over seventy persons participated in the actual construction of the half-court which was planned and executed within two days. Traditional island leaders such as Pius Siden also assisted in the logistics of organizing labor for the project.

Upon its completion, Pakin had its first official construction for athletic purposes, thus allowing for future opportunities in coaching and activity organization focusing on physical education and skill development. PCA President Aisek Artui composed a letter of appreciation to the Australian Embassy and future projects built upon the established relationship between the two islands are currently being pursued.

Law enforcement chiefs discuss safety and security issues regarding regional developments

Between Monday and Thursday of last week, two important security meetings were held in Pohnpei. Senior police executives from throughout the Micronesian region, including FSM, CNMI and Australia met in Pohnpei to discuss approaches to respond to regional crime and security issues.

The first meeting held on Monday and Tuesday was the FSM Heads of Law Enforcement Conference. Attendees at the meeting were from each of the FSM State and National police departments, FSM Immigration, Customs, the FSM Public Auditor and postal services. Two representatives from the Australian Federal Police also attended the meeting and spoke about the Australian funded Pacific Policing Development Program (PPDP) and the assistance available to law enforcement agencies throughout this region.

The two day Micronesia Police Executive Association (MPEA) meeting followed the Heads of Law enforcement conference. During both meetings a number of presentations were given relating to the expansion of the Pohnpei airport to accommodate larger international aircraft, the Guam build-up and changes to immigration in Saipan.

The attendees were advised that the extensions to the Pohnpei airport will result in larger numbers of people travelling to the FSM. A National Task Force has been established to examine a range of issues relating to increases in flight arrivals from Philippines, Palau and possibly Japan. Security matters of concern are immigration and other border breaches including the introduction of invasive plants and animals. Opportunities for transnational crime activities such as drug trafficking, money laundering and people smuggling were also discussed.

Chairperson of the Heads of Law Enforcement meeting, Pohnpei State Chief of Police, Joe Roby, told the Kaselehlie Press, "The value of forums such as these is immeasurable. The opportunity for senior police executives to meet like this and discuss important safety and security issues allows for law enforcement agencies to be more effective in their efforts to make our communities safer. Officials attending the meetings were also very happy with the advice given by the Australia Federal Police representatives regarding the support which can be provided to our departments."

A strategy was also developed proposing for the FSM to host the Pacific Islands

Chiefs of Police (PICP) Conference in Pohnpei in 2011. PICP is the peak forum for police chiefs throughout the Pacific region. The FSM bid to host PICP in FSM will be delivered to the next PICP meeting to be held in Brisbane, Australia at the end of this month.

Pohnpei gets nod to host Micronesia Games in 2014 FSM state last hosted the event in 2002

By Maripet L. Poso

KOROR, Palau (Palau Horizon, Aug. 18, 2010) – Pohnpei will be hosting the next Micronesian Games, which happen in 2014. The first time that Pohnpei hosted the quadrennial multi-sport event was in 2002.

During the closing ceremony of the 7th Micronesian Games held on Tuesday afternoon at the Palau Track and Field, the Micronesian Games flag was officially handed over to Pohnpei.

"We're very happy and excited about it," Mike Loyola, Chef de Mission of Pohnpei delegation, said in an interview. He said they really prepared well for their bidding proposal. "We gathered the support of our leaders back in Pohnpei, our traditional leaders, national government leaders, as well as State leaders."

Loyola added that they found out that everybody else backed out in the bidding. "When we presented our bid, other bidders did not submit theirs. Maybe they wanted to go to Pohnpei for the next Micro Games," Loyola said.

Loyola said they hosted the Micro Games back in 2002, and they learned a lot from Palau and Commonwealth of Northern Marianas Islands, which hosted the Micro Games back in 2006. "We're going to try to follow what Palau and Saipan did," Loyola said. "We will try to do our best."

First thing that they're going to do, according to Loyola, is to solicit funding in cash and in kind. "Next is we will upgrade our facilities, make sure that the sleeping quarters for the athletes are okay; and food and security are good. Those things are very important."

"To our sister state in the east, Pohnpei, which will be hosting the next Micro Games, congratulations," Frank Kyota, Chairman of the Micronesian Games, said during his speech at the closing ceremony. "As the sun sets in the west, we welcome its rise in the east. We are in good hands. The journey of the Micronesian Games continues."

William Keldermans, President of the Micronesian Games Council, also congratulated Pohnpei. He said Pohnpei submitted a bid to the council, and the council approved.

He went on to say, "...that the camaraderie, the friendship, the spirits he saw among the athletes in this year's Micronesian games will continue throughout the 2014 Micro Games in Pohnpei."

Secretary Skilling connects with health educators in Japan for assistance in FSM

FSM Information Services

August 18, 2010

Palikir, Pohnpei - The Secretary of Health and Social Affairs, Honorable Vita Skilling, visited Japan from July 26 to August 4, 2010, on an invitation by the Association of Medical Educators in the Western Pacific Region (AMEWPR). The visit was sponsored by the Sasakawa Peace Foundation (SPF).

The purpose of Skilling's visit was to present an outline of the human resource needs and training needs for health development in the FSM, at the joint symposium of the AMEWPR and the Japan Society of Medical Educators. In order that the Japanese medical educators could evaluate the proper types of training that may be needed to practice in a developing country such as the FSM, Skilling highlighted the fact that the FSM does not yet have any medical schools.

During her visit, Skilling toured two Japanese medical schools, the Japan International Cooperation Agency office, a biomedical equipment company and other agencies. Also, through collaboration between the Sasakawa Peace Foundation and the Embassy of the FSM to Japan, Skilling paid a courtesy call to the Japanese Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

It is hoped this visit will strengthen the prospect of obtaining training assistance in the FSM's health sector from the NGOs in Japan, to complement the assistance that the Government of Japan is already providing for the FSM.

SPF, established in Japan since 1986, per its mission statement, seeks to contribute to the welfare of humanity and the sound development of the international community, and thus to world peace, through activities that foster international interaction and cooperation. SPF provides grants for, and when necessary, implements by itself, projects that are intended to help resolve common challenges facing the international community and challenges facing Japan in its relations with other countries, but that are difficult for the state or businesses to undertake.

President Mori signs partnership for development agreement with Australia

FSM Information Services

August 13, 2010

Palikir, Pohnpei - On August 4, 2010, while in Vanuatu, attending the 41st Pacific Islands Forum Leaders Meeting in Vanuatu, President Mori signed a Partnership for Development Agreement with the Government of Australia.

The Agreement is a reflection of the Australian Government's commitments made in their Port Moresby Declaration. The Declaration, signed by the Australian Prime Minister in March 2008, established Australia's intentions for a new approach towards the Pacific region via Partnership for Development Agreements, to improve governance, increase investment in economic infrastructure, and achieve better outcomes in health and education with Pacific island nations. Other aspects of the Declaration include assisting Pacific island nations to achieve their Millennium Development Goals and meet the challenge of climate change mitigation.

The Agreement, executed by Mori, provides that the Government of Australia will support the FSM's pursuit of sustainable economic growth strategies; deliver a jointly determined program of technical, policy and financial support to assist FSM in implementing its development strategies; and facilitate donor coordination. The Agreement provides that, in return, the FSM Government will pursue its development through appropriate budgets, laws, policies, strategies and programs; will optimize the use of aid to achieve this development; and will continue to work towards its Millennium Development Goals.

The parties to the Agreement further agreed that they will initially focus on three key areas: financial stability and economic development, with an emphasis on tax reform; environmental management, with an emphasis on legislation and legal reform; and coordination of development assistance.

PIDB Board forms task force, elects new officers

The Pacific Islands Development Bank (PIDB) Board of Governors held a special meeting in Palau on Friday, July 30, primarily to review and address the bank's capacity and resource base, vital to its growth and expansion strategy. While the bank has consistently grown in total assets and loan balances in the past five years, increasing its financial resources and capacity remains one of its immediate and highest priorities. The Board, recognizing that need, formed a four-member special Task Force whose main task and objective is to identify and pursue various funding and capitalization sources. "PIDB plays a significant and expanding role in promoting and facilitating the economic development of our island communities", said Gov. Felix Camacho, Chairman of the PIDB Board of Governors. He added that "we need to secure the necessary resources the bank needs in order to carry out its mission and purpose and forming the Task Force is timely". Aren Palik, Bank President & CEO, indicated that the bank has been undercapitalized since its inception and cautioned that securing additional capitalization and funding will not be an easy task. "With the ongoing global recession and the economic and financial challenges faced by many industrialized countries, securing additional capital especially through soft loans will not be easy". Palik added, "the Task Force will work diligently and collaborate with our member governments and development partners as we pursue funding from both public and private sources".

Governor Robert Weilbacher of Kosrae reported in the meeting that Kosrae has made another purchase of capital stock worth $50,000. This increases Kosrae's total contributed capital in the bank to $700,000. Yap, Palau, Guam, Pohnpei, and Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands have already completed its required membership equity capital of $1 million. Chuuk State has contributed $251,000. Chairman Camacho thanked Governor Weilbacher for Kosrae's continued commitment, especially in these difficult times.

The Board also approved the final terms and conditions of a loan facility between PIDB and FSM Development Bank and discussed the status of Marshall Islands membership in the bank, expressing hope that RMI will soon join the bank with its first membership installment payment. The Board, before adjourning, also elected the following new Officers: Governor Sebastian Anefal of Yap, Chairman, Governor John Ehsa of Pohnpei, Vice Chairman, and Vice President and Minister of Finance Kerai Mariur of Palau, Secretary. Outgoing Chairman Camacho thanked members for their support, adding that it has truly been an honor to serve as Chairman of the Board.

Two days earlier, the bank's Board of Directors also held its regular meeting and to facilitate the Board of Governors meeting. Among others, the Board reviewed its 2nd quarter operational performance, investment report, adequacy of allowance for loan loss reserve, and took action on commercial loan requests. The seven-member board is chaired by the Bank's President and CEO.

Pacific Islands Development Bank (PIDB) is a regional development finance institution, created by the Association of Pacific Island Legislatures (APIL), to assist and contribute to the economic and social development of its member nations and States, individually and collectively, and to promote economic cooperation among them. Current members of the bank include the Republic of Palau, Island of Guam, Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, and the FSM States of Yap, Chuuk, Pohnpei, and Kosrae. Its corporate office is located in Guam. To learn more about the bank and its products and services, visit www.pacificidb.com.

Poison Centers Ready to Handle Your Medicine Mistakes

One of the common misconceptions surrounding poison centers is that they are aimed primarily at children who've gotten into something they shouldn't have. While poison centers do take such calls, they also take plenty of calls from people who've made mistakes when taking their medicine. In 2008, 10.6 percent of all poison exposures occurred as a result of "therapeutic errors," including taking the wrong medicine or inadvertently taking doses too close together.

The Nebraska and FSM Regional Poison Center offers the following tips aimed at taking medicine safely:

- Never take medicine that isn't intended for you, and never give a person medicine not intended for them. Do not use another person's prescription, even if it is similar to one you may be taking.
 - Do not give a child medicine or vitamins intended for adults.
 - Never use a household spoon to measure liquids because the volume in such a spoon could vary widely and the dose would not be accurate.
 - Make sure after refilling a prescription that the pills look the same as the previous month. Put pills in a place where they cannot be found by children. If the directions are not clear or appear to have changed, ask the pharmacist or your doctor as soon as you notice it. If side effects occur when taking medicine, call your doctor or pharmacist to check and see if you should stop the drug.
 - Some drugs include warnings that they should not be taken with certain drugs, supplements, foods or alcohol. Be sure you know if this applies to your medicines.
 - Never take medicine in the dark, and use glasses or a magnifier to read the label if necessary before taking each dose. Some poison exposures occur when people accidentally take medicine intended for their pets, or used ear drops in their eyes, or inhaled a spray product intended for the nose.
 - Store all medicines out of the sight of teens and others who may try to take them out of curiosity or for abuse purposes. If there are strong pain killers or other potent drugs in the home, consider locking them up separately from other medicines.
 - Maintain an up-to-date list of all medicines for each family member, including prescription and over-the-counter drugs, as well as supplements. Show the list to your doctor at clinic visits, and verify each time you go to the pharmacy for refills or buy a new medicine. Be sure you have any allergies listed as well. Having this information when you travel is also very important.
 - When using medicine administered by a "patch," take off one patch before applying the next one. In the case of topical products, wash off the skin before applying more.
 - Don't flush old medicines down the toilet. Instead, mix them with an inedible substance like coffee grounds or kitty litter, then dispose of them in a sealed bag or other container in the trash. If you are worried or have a question about how to take medicine safely, call the poison center.
- Dial 288, wait for operator, then 800-222-1222 or call FSM Department of Health & Social Affairs, 320 2872/8300 or your local pharmacy.

... Boys to men

four islands attended the camp, which focused on the importance of attending high school and related study skills; abstinence and HIV/AIDS education and healthy relationships; and substance abuse and mental health awareness.

PCVs Plum, Ramsey-Macomber, and Lebednik authored a grant through the Australian government's Direct Aid Program to fund the camp – educational supplies, recreational materials, gasoline for transportation to/from camp, food, and honorariums to the camp workers. Plum recognized the municipal government of Moch Island and the Moch school community for their willingness to host the camp “and get these young men of the Mortlocks off on a good foot.”

“Well, I think it was a success,” said Ramsey-Macomber. “They came here sticking to themselves, but look at them now – they’ve made new friends and I don’t see any two from the same island sitting next to one another.” Also making this point, Rev. Simion Haidy, associate pastor of Satowan Protestant Church and the adult facilitator from that island, in his closing remarks thanked the camp for bringing the boys together, relating how nervous and shy they were about coming here, but how happy and relaxed they have become over the course of the camp. “(The Satowan boys) thought they would be sleeping together in the same room – so we only brought one big mat. When we got here and saw they were split up, they got really upset. But, even after one hour, it was okay again because they started to make friends.”

The boys participated in learner-centered workshops during the camp's three morning group sessions to discuss and learn about the camp's three educational topics. After lunch, team builders and ice-breakers helped form bonds which were cemented during the volleyball, capture the flag, and soccer games they played. Free time saw a lot of chess, card-playing, swimming, and just hanging out. “We realized pretty quick that what we were doing was just brand new out here,” said Lebednik. “Learner-focused discussions, youth involvement, and opportunities for their own leadership just haven't been presented to them before. So it was huge that they could take the next step in their maturity.”

“I think if we're successful, we're going to still be hearing about this “first camp” over the course of several months, if not years. And when next school year starts, I bet we'll have a new batch of 8th graders wanting to attend. And if that's how it goes, I think building the local capacity is going to get easier, and we're going to see this thing really get some traction,” said Plum.

After the camp t-shirts were handed out, the group pictures taken, and the handshakes and goodbyes made, the boys walked off down the path to their homes and waiting boats. As one camper returned to his home on the island, his brother offered him the rest of his cigarette. “Nevermind. I'm quitting,” he said.

Alex Plum is a Peace Corps Volunteer in Micronesia, where he teaches ESL and helps facilitate community development on an outer-island. “Camp Boys to Men” is the first project he created to intentionally reach out and address the issues and challenges facing young men as they grow up.

Pohnpei Street Talk

We know everyone loves to eat... and rice is always a big part of our meals. But we want to know how much you love your rice.

“Local food is an important part of most Micronesians’ daily diets. If you could choose to eat rice or local food with your meal every day for the rest of your life, which one would you choose? Which local foods are your favorites?”

“I choose local.

The best local foods are breadfruit and banana. I eat just a little, not much, and I’m full.”

Asher Hallens

Local... Yam

I plant plenty yams. It’s good for my body and it’s easy to cook. Sometimes I eat rice, but local food is the best.

Rod Robert

Most of what I eat is local food. If I eat local food it makes me feel strong and healthy. When I eat rice it doesn’t make me feel strong but it gives me energy.. maybe for only one hour though.

I can’t choose only one favorite local food. It depends on what the local recipe is or what I’m eating at that time.

Molden Henley

Local food... I like breadfruit... any kind of breadfruit. Local food makes me strong and healthy. It gives me energy and protects me from diseases.

Isiro Edward

Rice!

I always eat rice and local food. When I eat rice I feel full but when I eat only local food I feel hungry again quickly and want to eat again. If I eat rice and local food I say, “I’m full enough!”

Marlyn Branish

Local... Taro

I like taro because it’s delicious and makes me feel strong. Also it’s easy for me to plant.

Eric Hedson

Local food for me. My favorite is uht sukuuk. When I eat local food I feel very full and have much energy.

Jeanette Feagley

Local! ...tiny taro. Local food is best for my health. The thing I like about local food is that it gives me energy and has so many vitamins inside.

The grant will extend the PLTP for an additional year and provide a new class of participants with valuable training which is recognized by the Department of Labor as equivalent to professional linemen certification programs on the U.S. mainland. Participating utilities, from each island, will provide $406,070 in combined matching contributions; bringing the total funding resulting from this grant to $845,570.

"The Pacific Lineman Training Program has been an exemplary model for building capacity and bolstering our workforce commitment and development throughout the U.S. Pacific Insular Areas. I am excited about the results generated by this program where support is largely geared towards the advancement of successful technical and vocational training programs that stand as a valuable resource throughout the region," said Assistant Secretary Babauta.

In 2009, the Pacific Lineman Training Program provided a total of 38 weeks of professional lineman training and more than 1,600 hours of instruction, both in the classroom and hands-on training in the field. In addition, six veteran linemen from Yap completed the Advance Certification class and received their U.S. Department of Labor certification.

"In the last five years, the Office of Insular Affairs has funded over $2.2 million for the Pacific Lineman Training Program to further develop a cadre of knowledgeable, professional lineman that provide their communities and the utilities service with safe and efficient electricity transmission and field expertise. This is an optimal opportunity to further expand our commitment to job creation while building on existing programs that leverage opportunities for future participants," added Babauta.

WHO opens country liaison office in Palikir

FSM Information Services

August 16, 2010

Palikir, Pohnpei - The World Health Organization (WHO) opened their new Country Liaison Office (CLO), within the Department of Health and Social Affairs (DHSA) offices, in Palikir, Pohnpei, on August 10, 2010. This new WHO Office is the first one ever established by the organization to cover the North Pacific region; it will provide services for the Federated States of Micronesia, the Republic of Palau and the Republic of the Marshall Islands. It is also the first new CLO created by the WHO in 30 years.

On that same day, the Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA), in conjunction with the DHSA, hosted an opening ceremony for the launch of the new CLO in Palikir, by unveiling the WHO's new plaque located at the entrance of the DHSA offices. Present at the ceremony were Vice President Alik; Dr. Shin Young-soo, Director of the WHO Western Pacific Regional Office; Dr. Chen Ken, WHO Representative for the South Pacific; Dr. Boris Pavlin, FSM Liaison Officer for WHO; Ambassador Prahar of the US Embassy; Ambassador Cox of the Australian Embassy; representatives from the Japanese and Chinese Embassies; Secretary Skilling, DHSA; Deputy Secretary Chigiyal, DFA; Secretary Itimai, TC&I; Dr. Mauricio, Director of Archives; John Ehsa, Governor of Pohnpei; Dr. Elizabeth Keller, Pohnpei State Director of Health, and many distinguished guests.

The Government and the people of this Nation are very honored and thankful to WHO, said Chigiyal. As a small island developing nation and as a member of this global health family, the FSM will continue to play its part in advancing WHO's mission, regionally and globally, by doing the best we can in improving health for our own, as well as by supporting the strategies and work of WHO.

The CLO will work with the DHSA on such health issues as diabetes, heart disease, infectious diseases, injury prevention, health system strengthening, and tobacco control; as well as assist the FSM, Palau and RMI with detecting and responding to outbreaks of infectious diseases such as multi-drug-resistant TB and dengue. The CLO will also coordinate and provide training for health professionals in the North Pacific region.

Dr. Chen Ken said that after many years of negotiations for the establishment of the CLO in FSM: this is a dream come true!

Opinion Editorial LAW AND ECONOMICS

How much is a life worth?

Martin Mix

The three men from Pohnpei who were lost at sea owe their lives to good luck. Two drifted to the Mortlocks in two weeks. One drifted to Palau in two months. All of the money that was spent on these two searches did not help.

All three of these men would have been home after one day if they had taken an EPIRB with them.

An epirob is a small radio that sends a signal to a satellite. When a signal is received the authorities in Pohnpei would be contacted and told that an emergency signal had been received. The authorities in Pohnpei would be told exactly where the signal came from.

The authorities in Pohnpei could then send a patrol boat or a private boat to help the boat that was in trouble.

The rescue would take two days at the most.

Epirbs cost from $200.00 up according to Amazon.com. You can get a really good one for $500.00.

It costs $250,000.00 for the US Coast Guard to bring an airplane and search for a lost boat. At $500.00 each it is possible to buy five hundred epirobs for the same money that it takes to do one US Coast Guard search.

It seems like a no-brainer that the US government should want to save money by having an epirob on every boat that goes outside the reef. They could give away epirobs to every boat that goes outside and it would be cheaper than doing one search per year.

I contacted the US Coast Guard with this idea. They are aware of the savings but the man I was in contact with said it was a bureaucratic nightmare. US Department of State, US Department of Defense, FSM Government, Pohnpei State Government are all involved. There are questions about giving away government property and about maintenance.

One official involved in disaster control feels that the people on the boat should care enough about their lives to have an epirob on the boat. I agree with him. If a person goes outside without an epirob it means that the person does not care enough about his own life to make sure that he is safe. If the person on the boat does not care about his life then why should the government care about his life?

The FSM Petroleum Corporation is providing epirobs for the Pohnpei Fishing Club boats. This is a great start. It seems to me, though, that the Fishing Club members are among those boat owners who can most likely afford to buy an epirob.

The question is how to get an epirob into every boat that goes outside the reef.

The answer is with legislation absolutely prohibiting the state from looking for a lost boat. If a boat without an epirob is lost then the family of the lost people will have to pay the cost of the search.

If this seems too harsh perhaps the US Government, the FSM Government and the Pohnpei State Government can come up with a way to help the boat owners get epirobs.

The US will save $250,000 for every search that the Coast Guard will not have to do. The FSM will save the money it takes to send the patrol boats out looking. Pohnpei State will save the cost of looking for the lost boat.

Requiring an epirob on every boat that goes outside will save the three governments money. More important is that it absolutely guarantees that the boat will be found within one day.

The three governments need to figure out a way to help but the epirobs if it is truly impossible for the boat owner to buy an epirob.

Until there is an epirob on every boat the US, the FSM and Pohnpei State will keep on spending all that money that could be used to buy epirobs.

Most important of all is that no boats will be lost. No lives will be put at risk.

Letter to the Editor

The most important point in your article on moving the dump site from Dekehtik to Palikir is covered by the statement: "transportation will be a component".

Transportation is more than a "component". Transportation is by far the most important factor that will make the idea work or not work.

Who is going to pay the cost to carry the trash from Dekehtik to Palikir? The equipment will cost hundreds of thousands of dollars to buy. It will cost tens of thousands of dollars each year to operate and maintain this equipment. This is in addition to the trash service we now have.

The road to the Palikir site will have to be upgraded and maintained to carry the big trucks that will move the trash. These trucks require a road in good condition.

Experience has shown that individuals will not take their trash to Dekehtik if it costs too much to do that. Individuals will not take their trash to Palikir because it is too expensive to drive there.

Who is going to pay to move the trash from Dekehtik to Palikir?

As soon as a definite and ongoing funding source to buy and operate and maintain the equipment is found I will back the Palikir site. Until that ongoing funding source is found then talk of moving the dump site is just that – talk only.

“Go Local” at 2nd China-Pacific Forum on Agricultural Cooperation

July 6, 2010 (FSM Embassy, Beijing) Organized by the Ministry of Agriculture of the People's Republic of China, the second China-Pacific Island Countries Forum on Agricultural Cooperation was held in Xiamen, Fujian Province, China from July

Ms. Emihner Johnson delivers presentation during the Forum on Agricultural Cooperation

Mwoakilloa joins the Go Local Agroforestry and Health Project

By Mona J. Tara

Mwoakilloa community has been added to the Go Local Agroforestry and Health Project in Pohnpei as a team from the Island Food Community of Pohnpei arrived on August 5, 2010. A one-day workshop was given on the Project Concept and the importance to grow and eat more local food. Over 50 adults and children attended the workshop. The Standard talk on the nutritional value of our own local food or “pein sakatail” was given by Ms. Emihner Johnson, the community local food educator. There was a great interest as the community shared the concerns they have regarding the consumption of local food. Ms. Johnson emphasized the importance of eating our own locally grown food as this would help prevent diseases like diabetes, heart problems and cancer. She also explained in detail the CHEEF benefits of growing and eating locally grown food. Everyone was excited after the lessons were given claiming that now that they know that they can go back to eating more locally grown food such as giant swamp taro, breadfruit, bananas and pandanus.

A Go Local Agroforestry and Health Baseline Survey was also carried out in order to understand better what the community is eating, what varieties of tree crops they are growing, their health knowledge and their waist circumference, which is an important health indicator for overweight and obesity. This information is also valuable for project evaluation purposes. IFCP would like to thank the Mayor, Mwoakilloa Municipal Government and staff for organizing a delicious all local food reception after the meeting. The participants gave positive comments on the fact that the dinner served had no rice and everyone enjoyed the dinner.

Special thanks are given to the funding agencies for making this visit possible: Secretariat of the Pacific Community Lifestyles Health Section, Food and Agriculture Organization, and US Forestry. Island Food Community of Pohnpei would like to thank Caroline Islands Air for inserting our trip in their busy schedules and Pohnpei State Department of Health services for allowing us to use their facility.

5-8, 2010. The Forum themed on promoting cooperation with companies to enhance food security brought together government officials from respective Ministries of the Chinese central and provincial governments of China, various researchers and private sector representatives to exchange views and information with the participating Pacific Island Countries on agriculture and food security. Participating Pacific island countries to the forum included: Cook Islands, FSM, Fiji, Niue, PNG, Samoa, Tonga, and Vanuatu.

The Forum provided an overview of the current cooperation between China and the Pacific Island Countries, and also provided the opportunity for represented countries and companies to give country and company presentations to report on agriculture related matters and to seek cooperation between the two sides. The dispatching of Chinese technicians in agriculture and animal husbandry, to the human resource development programs in China, all have played a critical role in the development of agriculture production and food security in the Pacific. China has taken measures within its capacity to assist with food security issues. Building on the success of the first Agriculture Forum that was held in Wuxi, Jiangsu Province in 2009, and noting that companies and enterprises are a dynamic element for economic development, this year's Agriculture Forum encouraged more cooperation with Chinese companies for the purpose of investment and foreign trade.

Representing the FSM in this important Forum was Ms. Emihner Johnson who is a local food educator working for the Island Food Community of Pohnpei, Micronesia. Ms. Johnson chaired a segment of the Forum and also did an excellent job in preaching the “Go Local” campaign from the FSM. Equipped with data and scientific analysis of local food found in Micronesia, she shared her experiences and accomplishments through the Island Food Community of Pohnpei. In her presentation she reiterated the same observations that were raised by other Pacific representatives on the need to improve and utilize more local products. In her presentation, Ms. Johnson educated the audience to revert back to local foods and save the large sum of money that is spent on imported food products ($17 million for Pohnpei) and at the same time save your health.

In light of the current agriculture cooperation that exists between FSM and China, Ms. Johnson thanked the Chinese Government for their continued assistance towards the pilot farm project in Madolenihmw, Pohnpei. The Farm covers an area of 80,000 square meters and has successfully produced over forty varieties of vegetables and fruits and has trained over six hundred local farmers. The products produced locally from the farm in Madolenihmw compliments the efforts of the Island Food Community of Pohnpei to encourage more people to consume local food for the “CHEEF” benefits. CHEEF is an acronym used by the Island Food Community referring to “Culture, Health, Economic, Environment, and Food security.

The agriculture cooperation forum provided a good platform for the exchange of information between the participants. Both sides have agreed that the forum was successful and have intensified discussions between China and the Pacific island countries. For future cooperation, the Chinese side has proposed that should the Pacific be willing to host the next forum, the Chinese side is willing to attend in order to gain a understanding of the Pacific environment in the areas of agriculture, investment, trade, etc. With regards to projects, the Chinese side has welcomed participating countries to follow up on the concluded forum and to also submit concrete and well designed project proposals for consideration.

Aside from participants from the respective capitals in the Pacific, invitations were extended to the Pacific island missions based in Beijing. First Secretary, Vincent Sivas represented the FSM Embassy at the Forum.
