23 January, 2014

Pohnpei - By Presidential Proclamation, January 22 was declared as the National Anti-Human Trafficking

Day. The Day itself was observed with a series of interesting events, the first of which was an information session specifically for the country's leadership. The Day was organized through collaboration between the FSM the Department of Justice, the International Organization for Migration (IOM) and the Migrant Resource Center (MRC). The MRC also provided the perfect space to conduct these initial proceedings for the day and MRC staff were thrilled that President Manny Mori personally delivered his special remarks at the Center. Following presentations from the Secretary of Justice, IOM Chief of Mission and MRC Coordinator; a lively discussion ensued. Of particular interest to the participants was how the States and the nation as a whole would chooseto define the human trafficking within the context of the legislation and their own culture. Secondly, participants discussed how children could be empowered to report trafficking cases once armed with the knowledge of how to identify a potential trafficking situation.

Fuel now leaking from Ping Da 7 - Governor orders state of emergency

By Bill Jaynes
The Kaselehlie Press

January 23, 2014

Pohnpei, FSM—On December 11, the Ping Da 7, a huge Kiribati flagged reefer ship landed on the Kepikepin Parem reefs and stuck fast. High surf during the following week drove the ship further still onto the reef to the point where at times of low tide the ship is sitting on essentially dry coral. The vessel carries a huge amount of fuel, oil, ammonia coolant and lube oil. Until this week the vessel was not leaking. Now it is.

Yesterday, Pohnpei Governor John Ehsa declared a state of emergency in regards to the Ping Da 7 tragedy.

Both Pohnpei State and the FSM national government have created task forces who are working jointly on solutions to the problem which has now become much more serious. The Governor's emergency declaration says that the Ping Da 7 has 737 metric tons of diesel oil aboard See "Fuel" on page 13

Pingelap's mayoral inauguration held on Pohnpei for the first time

By Bill Jaynes
The Kaselehlie Press

January 14, 2014

Pohnpei, FSM— Mayor Makir Keller was inaugurated for his third term this morning at the Pingelap meeting house in Nan Pepper. It was the first time in Pingelap history that the inauguration of its mayor took place on Pohnpei rather than on Pingelap.

Mayor Keller said that though they would have preferred for the inauguration to have taken place in Pingelap, their constitution does not require it. He said that the fact that significantly more Pingalapese live on Pohnpei than live on Pingelap did not factor into the decision to hold the inauguration here. That decision was driven by the simple matter of a lack of transportation to the Pingelap atolls.

During a later interview, Mayor Keller said that there is a municipal office in Pingelap but there is also an office in Pohnpei. He said that the decision to have an office in Pohnpei was made several years ago because much of the work for the people of Pingelap is done here. Having an office in Pohnpei means that they have access to the State Government and to other governments as they pursue funding and develop projects for Pingelap.

The inauguration was attended by Nanwahrki of Pingelap, Berysin Solomon and his wife Nancy along with traditional leaders of Pingelap. The nanwahrki addressed the crowd saying that the inauguration, and even its location was ordained by God.

Lt. Governor Marcelo Peterson also addressed the small crowd congratulating the people of Pingelap.

During the Mayor's inaugural address, he vowed to visit the Pingelap atolls more often and to continue to work to develop ongoing projects and to develop new ones.

He said that the Coconut products project that was developed with seed money from the Japanese Embassy is still continuing and doing well. It employs nine people and the Mayor would like to see that program expand. Since the project began on Pingelap they have been producing virgin coconut oil, soap, body and hair lotion, charcoal and pig feed from Pingelap's abundant coconut. Keller said that the products are delivered to Pohnpei every six months and are popular so far. They are currently sold out of pig feed. The project is operating a modest profit.

He said that the National Government provided $10,000 for research into the possibility of beginning a coconut lumber industry on Pingelap. Keller said that 40 percent of the coconut trees on Pingelap are "senile", meaning they no longer produce coconuts but they could be used for the production of lumber. Development of that project is ongoing.

He said that up until six months ago the people of Pingelap had access to Internet services though a grant from the national government but that funding ran out. Within the next three months he hopes to have internet services restored but it will have to be a pay for usage service. Previously residents were able to access the Internet for free. For now, communication to and from Pingelap is once again being handled by radio.

He said that 90 percent of the residents of Pingelap live on a subsistence basis. There are only a handful of public employees such as teachers, health officials, and Pingelap government officials who receive a salary. What cash is used on Pingelap often comes from family remittances.

He said that the people of Pingelap are interested in keeping their island clean and beautiful as it always has been. They hope to be able to gain access to solar power and to develop tourism. He said that there is already one small resort consisting of local houses and that the owners also provide meals at a low cost. He hopes that many more people will be interested in visiting the pristine atolls as tourists. "You can't find friendlier people than in Pingelap," he said.

The master of ceremonies for the inauguration was Semensin James who serves as Treasurer and was the chairman of the inauguration committee.

A thousand English dictionaries headed for Pohnpei

Habele Outer Island Education Fund

January 23, 2014

A South Carolina based nonprofit has sent a thousand English language dictionaries to the picturesque Island of Pohnpei. Its one of four states in the Central Pacific Ocean that make up the string of islands called the Federated States of Micronesia (FSM). The dictionaries include an abbreviated atlas, something local island students can use to learn more about distant North American geography.

This unique donation is enough to provide every eighth grade student across Pohnpei State with something previously unheard of – a dictionary of their very own.

More than forty boxes of books will soon arrive in the Pohnpeian city of Kolonia. They will be distributed to the 900 eighth grade students who are enrolled in the roughly 30 public schools across Pohnpei and its Outer Islands. Dictionaries are also enroute to eighth grade students at the Pohnpei SDA School, Calvary Christian Academy, and the Pohnpei Catholic School, as well as readers at the downtown public library.

The donation is particularly meaningful as Pohnpei, like all the isolated islands in the Central Pacific, struggles with economic and educational challenges. Among those lucky enough to enroll in the nation's two-years community college system, only a tiny fraction will earn a degree, according to recent data from the US Government. Per-capita income remains under $3,000 per year and many families still rely on subsistence fishing and farming.

The donation was organized by Columbia based "Habele," a group of former Peace Corps Volunteers who served as teachers in Micronesia. They partnered with Ray and Barbara Dalio of Connecticut. Their Dalio Family Foundation provided the vision and support to design and implement the project.

Larry Raiget, A Habele volunteer from nearby Yap State, helped piece together the effort. "This donation is exactly what local educators and librarians told us they needed. It's a huge opportunity, particularly those students struggling with generational poverty." Raiget is also the founder of "Waa'gey" a nonprofit in Yap that works to preserve traditional skills, and has partnered with Habele on projects in that State. He spent several weeks in Pohnpei this winter working to develop plans for the donation of the dictionaries.

South Carolina based charity Habele has been working in Micronesia since 2006. In addition to coordinating donations of text, reference and reading books, the group awards scholarships and provides support to community-based after school programs. These include traditional dugout canoe carving (through the Waa'gey organization) and Micronesia's first ever-high school robotics team exhibition. Late last year, Habele created a computer lab for Our Lady of Mercy Catholic High School and provided cases of donated books to the Pohnpei Public Library.

NBA coach visits Pohnpei as a Sport Ambassador

By Bill Jaynes
The Kaselehlie Press

January 20, 2014

Pohnpei, FSM—Coach Tom Newell's passport must be full indeed. He's been around and this week he visited his 41st country—the Federated States of Micronesia. He left island early this morning on his way to his 42nd country, the Republic of Palau.

Coach Newell has had a long history with basketball on a professional level and he was in Pohnpei as a Sports Ambassador at the request and invitation of the United States Embassy to the FSM. While he was in Pohnpei he met with basketball coaches every weekday morning at the FSM National Olympic Committee conference room to encourage them and to train them to build the sport in the FSM. He encouraged them to form a coaches' association and to more formally organize the sport in Pohnpei.

He said that team sports like basketball can build life skills in young people's lives. The structure, rules, team building and camaraderie of organized sports can help young people to learn skills that they will use for the rest of their lives, "Plus it's fun", he exclaimed in his winsome way.

Winsome is the right word. Wherever Coach Newell went he made friends. He also brought along his 2011 Dallas Maverick's championship ring and let people young and old—sports fans or not—take pictures wearing his ring. He said that probably several thousand people have worn his ring since he got it. He said it's something he likes to do when he travels because while

Ping Da 7 relief efforts

International Organization for Migration

January 15, 2014

In response to an urgent request from the FSM Department of Justice (DoJ), the FSM National Police and International Organization for Migration (IOM) provided food and cooking equipment to the Chinese National crewmen remaining on Ping Da 7, the large sea vessel that ran aground on the North Point of Pohnpei Island's fringing reef on 11-December, 2013.

FSM DoJ became aware of dangerously low food stocks on board, and due to the inability of the vessel to run its generators the crew have had no electrical power to cook food with. On January 14, 2014 the Secretary of Justice, Hon. April Skilling and the IOM Chief of Mission Ashley Carl discussed how IOM and DoJ could work together in providing food relief to the stranded crew.

On the same day, food supplies and cooking equipment was purchased including fresh vegetables and fruits, rice, ramen noodles, canned meat, eggs, and butane cookers with extra cooking gas canisters. The following day IOM personnel accompanied the FSM National Police vessel Unity and crew to deliver the supplies to the Ping Da 7 and its crew.

The Government of the FSM and the IOM will continue to provide assistance to stranded migrants wherever possible through the Migrant Resource Center located in Kolonia, which will celebrate its one year anniversary in March.

President Mori signs FSM Climate Change Act and concludes review of ten recent public laws

FSM Information Services

January 9, 2014

After the Federated States of Micronesia Eighteenth Congress passed a number of Congressional Acts during the last special session, President Manny Mori took the time to review the Acts during the Christmas and New Year season and made his decisions.

First among the list is Congressional Act No. 18-25 which was signed into law as Public Law No. 18-24 on December 13, 2013. The Act is an appropriation of $225,000 to assist with humanitarian relief efforts for the victims of Typhoon Haiyan in the Republic of the Philippines, Republic of Palau, the FSM State of Yap, and the Socialist Republic of Vietnam. President Mori wrote to Speaker Doshis Halbert regarding the appropriation stating: "I am pleased that Congress has taken the initiative to appropriate funding for humanitarian assistance to the affected neighboring areas as a result of typhoon Haiyan which has swept through these areas and has left impact and devastation to the essential services, property and life".

On January 2, 2014, President Mori signed into law an Act that clarifies the modifications to the Compact Funds distribution formula among the National Government and the State Governments as previously modified by Public Law No. 18-12. This new law, PL No. 18-25, specifies the distribution formula does not apply to the Supplemental Education Grant under the Compact.

On the same day, President Mori approved Congressional Act No. 18-32, which has become Public Law 18-26. This law appropriates an amount of $1,889,072 as a supplemental budget for some of the budget line items requested by the President before the 2nd Special Session started. The amount also includes $200,000 evenly split among the Congressional delegation offices to fund contractual services. A provision in the law allows up to $25,000 from this Delegation Offices' supplemental budget to be used for Members' representation funds "at the discretion of each office".

In his transmittal letter to Speaker Halbert regarding the supplemental budget, President Mori expressed that he signed the legislation "with reservation". The appropriation "lacks the flexibility to provide funding for targeted projects that will accelerate economic growth in the near term", he stated, and ignores other funding requests for what the President considers as "critical priorities", especially in preparation for expected fiscal challenges in fiscal year 2023. He also pointed out that allowing funds to be "discretionarily utilized" for purposes other than its specific use lacks transparency.

On January 3, 2014, President Mori signed into law Congressional Act No. 18-24, which has become Public Law No. 18-34 and is known as the Federated States of Micronesia Climate Change Act. The Act creates legal obligations for departments and offices in the implementation of the Integrated Disaster Risk Management and Climate Change Policy promulgated in December 2009 and further strengthens the mainstreaming of activities and policies in implementing climate change and disaster management framework of actions.

"I thank Congress for passing the Federated States of Micronesia Climate Change Act. Establishing a national policy in the area of climate change is essential in protecting our nation and furthering the interests and well-being of our people."

Finally, seven public laws were transmitted to Congress on January 6, 2014, which have become laws pursuant to Article IX Section 22 of the FSM Constitution.

These laws are P.L. 18-27, P.L. 18-28, P.L. 18-29, P.L. 18-30, P.L. 18-31, P.L. 18-32 and P.L. 18-33.

All of the laws concern "public projects and social programs" whose funds were previously appropriated by Congress. Specifically, the seven laws make further changes to previous appropriations in terms of their use and allottees in certain States.

In his transmittal letter, President Mori alluded to some "common characteristics" among the measures that weaken clear justifications and make funds tracking and project implementation difficult.

"It would be most helpful if Congress would set a policy limiting to a maximum of only three amendments per Act in order to avoid problems" -- the problems outlined refer to repeated changes to the initial appropriation laws.

The President concluded the Executive Branch's work on the new laws and transmitted them to Congress.

8th Graders from Sokehs Powe take on Climate Change

8th graders from Sokehs Powe elementary school participating in IOM's Climate Adaptation, Disaster Risk Reduction, and Education (CADRE) program were asked this question: "If you were the President of the FSM, as the nation's leader, what would you do to combat climate change?" This initiative is supported by the Australian Government and managed by the International Organization for Migration (IOM). Here's what these hopeful future leaders had to say.

FSM Congress overrides President Mori's veto of a $4.9 million public project appropriation

FSM Information Services

January 14, 2014

On January 3, Federated States of Micronesia President Manny Mori disapproved Congressional Act No. 18-34, which would provide an amount of $4.9 million from the general fund of the FSM for fiscal year 2014 to fund "public projects and social programs" in all the States.

The Act was passed by Congress on December 5, 2013, during its Second Special Session.

In his veto message to Speaker Dohsis Halbert, President Mori emphasized his support of public projects and programs "when conceived and implemented properly" as they contribute to basic government services and support economic growth. However, the President reiterated the need for transparency and clear guidance on the process employed in the determination and allocation of resources to projects. He further stated with regards hearing, "this is the most serious part of the process because without such public hearings, there is no opportunity for the public to have input into the process of providing public projects and programs for their well-being".

President Mori also observed that "while revenue has continue to grow, Congress is also increasing appropriations for public projects and programs" in an unsustainable manner as the FSM moves closer to 2023, the year financial assistance from the United States under the Compact is expected to terminate.

President Mori would rather have "surplus" revenue for the Nation be allocated to "priority programs" such as the proposed Set Aside fund to help defray "anticipated shortfall of the more than $600 million in the Trust Fund and provide funding for targeted projects", such as the "Fly Micronesia" airline project. Among other priority improvement projects, the FSM has toiled to enhance the transportation sector, including concerted efforts on a viable regionally targeted airline to strengthen the tourism industry.

During this current session, the Third Regular Session, Congress undertook to override the veto on January 13, putting in place the latest public project and social program appropriation law.

Pohnpeian to assume top desk for RMI CADRE

By Bill Jaynes
The Kaselehlie Press

January 20, 2013

Pohnpei, FSM—Canita Rilometo Swigert's passion for helping the people of Micronesia to cope with climate change issues has not gone unnoticed. She has been promoted to the position CADRE Sub-Office Manager in the Republic of the Marshall Islands.

CADRE stands for Climate Adaptation and Disaster Risk Reduction Education, a program managed by the International Organization of Migration and fully funded by the Australian Government.

Swigert has been working in Pohnpei and the Marshall Islands as a Training Assistant. In Pohnpei she teaches 8th graders about the risks of natural disaster and climate change and also helps communities to develop disaster risk plans. In the Marshall Islands, the program is for 9th graders.

Two years ago Swigert was already serving as an IOM Training Assistant. She said that she just tried to do the job the best way she could but until she went to Majuro to teach she hadn't particularly been passionate about it.

Though Swigert is a Pohnpeian, she was born and raised in the Marshall Islands. She says that her classmates used to laugh at her because of her passion for the environment. She would nearly always arrive with her back pack and pockets full of trash that she had picked up while she walked to and from school. She started a youth group when she was in High School. One of that group's projects was to clean a particular beach in Majuro.

But then life intervened. She moved away from Majuro. While she was gone she served a four year stint in the U.S. Army that included a deployment in Bosnia. She said that the islands and the issues of islanders became more and more remote in her mind.

Two years ago when Swigert returned to Majuro as a CADRE instructor she went to visit "her" beach and discovered that it no longer existed. "...It changed everything for me. It wasn't there," she exclaimed during an interview in Fiji last summer. "The beach was gone. We cleaned that beach and we planted trees there but it's gone." That experience changed her world. Suddenly she remembered all of the passion she had previously had for her home and her people in the islands. She attacked her job with a new found vigor.

It has not gone unnoticed. At the end of the month she will begin a nine month contract essentially as the boss of the CADRE program in the Marshall Islands, in charge of the program in 14 high schools there. Her new job will involve significantly more administrative duties but she says that she will still be working directly with the people, particularly with the group Youth to Youth in Health. That community group was started by the late Darlene Johnson whose life was memorialized in the book "Don't Ever Whisper" by Giff Johnson. Johnson was also posthumously selected as this year's Pacific Person of the Year by Islands Business.

Swigert will also be in charge of helping school principals and teachers in the Marshall Islands to develop disaster response plans.

Though she is excited about her new opportunity she says it is bittersweet. Her husband is a National Police officer in Pohnpei. Her mother lives here. She also has a touch of healthy self doubt about whether she will be able to adequately perform the responsibilities of her new job. But if her passion driven performance in the communities of Pohnpei and RMI are any indicator she needn't lose any sleep over that concern.

His visit to Pohnpei started with a VIP reception at the U.S. Ambassador's residence. After his meeting with the coaches at FSMNOC he had a practical skills building session with the coaches at the College of Micronesia Pohnpei Campus gym. On the next afternoon he had a skills building session with High School students also at the gym, followed by a radio interview at the Baptist Radio Station. On Friday he gave an entertaining lecture to students and faculty at the COM National Campus, followed by another practical session at the COM-FSM gym. On Saturday he conducted a "drills and skills" session, also at the national campus gym. In the afternoon he coached teams in a "three on three" tournament.

Finally, on Sunday he got a chance to see a few of the sites in Pohnpei and also met with students from Enipein School.

President Mori questions composition of the "Committee to Wait on the President" and asks for effective project planning and control

FSM Information Services

January 17, 2014

The Third Regular Session of the Eighteenth Congress of the Federated States of Micronesia got started with an "unusual" departure from tradition on January 10, 2014.

The normal practice has been that the Speaker of Congress appoints a four-member committee known as the "Committee to Wait on the President", comprising of Members from the four State Delegations. January 10, 2014 marked a departure from that usual practice when Speaker Dohsis Halbert appointed an all-Chuukese Committee to report to President Manny Mori that Congress is in town and ready for action. The Committee consisted of Senator Wesley Simina, Chairman, Senator Tiwiter Aritos, Senator Tony Otto and Senator Victor Goulard. President Mori questioned the motives behind having only Chuukese Members on the Committee and said it may have been done in response to his January 9 letter to Speaker Halbert. Chairman Simina said the Chuukese Senators did not request for such appointment and assured the President the Committee, as composed, represented Congress as a whole.

President Mori pointed out some items that have been pending at Congress, specifically the telecommunication bill as well as a number of nominations. He also made mention of a current budget supplemental request that he would like Congress to address this session.

It has become more evident that Congress would require more time to adequately tackle its workload. For this, President Mori suggested that Congress consider lengthening its regular sessions or adding one more.

A significant amount of time went into the exchange of discussions on the President's "urgent concerns" as raised in his January 9th letter to Congress regarding legislative process with regards public projects. The President asserted the entire process needs to be rectified beginning with the initial development of projects all the way through the various parts of the process that impact the successful control and completion of projects. More specifically, he raised the issue relating to the inadequate control of the processing and execution of the Project Control Document (PCD). A flawed and inadequate PCD renders the implementation and inspection of projects defective. In the same letter, the President emphasized that he would stop public project funds if the defective process remains unresolved.

Chairman Simina agreed that there are issues to be resolved relating to the matter and that both Congress and the Executive Branch need to work closely to resolve the issues.

The President also raised his concern that while the Nation experiences a period of increase in revenue generated domestically, Congress expenditures through public projects also surge. The President has voiced on numerous occasions that the FSM needs to save-up funds through its Trust Fund and a Set Aside Fund to be able to face financial pitfalls after 2023, address environmental demands and catastrophes, and invest in priority-based economic projects undergoing due diligence. He has been asking Congress to allocate money into these types of reserves and to cap allocations into "public projects and social programs" as way to demonstrate a serious concerted leadership front in charting a tenable way forward more responsibly. Congress has not acted favorably toward the idea of a Set Aside fund. Instead, it has exercised the privilege of increasing allocations towards projects determined rather exclusively by Members on top of outstanding project funds that have yet to be fully expended.

As a matter of inquiry, Congress wanted to be updated on details of the breakdown of the $500,000 World Bank grant that went through the Congressional approval process during the November special session.

Congress also inquired about the status of the various typhoon relief assistance provided to the Republic of the Philippines, the Republic of Palau, the FSM State of Yap and the Socialist Republic of Vietnam for disasters brought about by Typhoon Haiyan a few months back.

The President assured Congress that checks for the relief assistance have been disbursed to the named recipients. However, acknowledgement of receipt by their respective Governments have not been received by the FSM as of the meeting time.

along with eight metric tons of lube oil, 75 metric tons of butane gas, seven metric tons of ammonia, one metric ton of hydraulic oil, 75 metric tons of fuel oil, and 75 metric tons of industrial oil.

Pohnpei State simply does not have the resources to salvage the huge quantity of fluids contained in the Ping Da 7. The declaration says that on January 21, one of the fuel tanks aboard the vessel began to leak into Pohnpei waters.

The joint task forces have apparently been working frantically to try to develop a solution to the problem of the stranded vessel, and the owner of the vessel, Jianghai Ping has reportedly turned his back on his liability for the situation in Pohnpei. According to informed sources, the insurance companies are also currently denying responsibility for the tragedy.

The Governor's Emergency Declaration says that Secretary Itimai of the Department of Transportation, Communications, and Infrastructure has been legally designated as the receiver for the vessel.

According to a press release by the FSM Public Information Office, the Task Force held a meeting before any fuel began to leak. During that meeting it was decided that the crew members should be brought to shore. Due to immigration problems, they had not been allowed to enter Pohnpei. Yesterday they were brought to shore for assistance with visa application processing in order to expedite their return trips to their homes in China. Jianghai, the owner of the vessel agreed with the decision to allow the crew members to leave the ship where it is currently grounded.

The press release says that State officials from the Attorney General's office, the Environmental Protection Agency, the Disaster Control Office, Marine Resources, Public Safety, as well as officials from the FSM Maritime Police and Quarantine Section have all gone to the ship since the leak report was made.

The release said that a joint team of unnamed experts with assistance from an unnamed "local company" went to the vessel to detail the leak points on the ship and to determine possible ways to contain the oil spill from spreading. Meanwhile, State and National entities were tasked to make yet another attempt at contact with the ship owner and the insurance assessors who have legal liabilities in the tragedy.

Several weeks ago a rumor circulated that a tugboat from Majuro, Marshall Islands was on its way to Pohnpei, and last week Radio Australia conducted a radio interview with an employee of the Conservation Society of Pohnpei who passed that rumor on. At the time of the interview, no such arrangement had been made but according to yesterday's press release the Task force is now moving to obtain assistance from "a company" in Majuro and with "a local company" for a possible joint effort to get the vessel off the reef and to take care of the oil spill.

The press release said that the FSM Office of Environment and Emergency Management was at the command post in Dekehtik in order to mobilize responses in conjunction with EPA and the Pohnpei State Disaster Office.

"The ship owner has not been responsive to contacts made by the Task force as he had indicated no intention to take full responsibility in salvaging the boat, much less collaborating in undertaking preventive measures against environmental harm," the press release concluded.

The FSM PIO's press release and the emergency declaration was the most significant detailed information that the government has released to independent media since the Ping Da 7 landed on the reef just over six weeks ago. One participant on the task force said that he had encouraged the task force to release information to the independent media but was told that the group did not want the independent media "along the way" and that we would have to find our own sources of information. Unfortunately, that decision has led to no small amount of misinformation even from large international news sources and has contributed to a sense that the government's response to the crisis is far from transparent.

Community Partnerships are essential

By April Turner

Island Food Community of Pohnpei

Island Food Community of Pohnpei initiated discussions earlier this month with Pohnpei Women Council and Pohnpei Farmers' Association on potential community projects for 2014. Community participation and multi-sectoral projects are the cornerstone of IFCP's approach.

Together, the importance of addressing the NCD epidemic and supporting our local farming community were discussed. The Pohnpei Women Council (PWC) President Ms Susana Sohs and Secretary Berno Lekka Hedson expressed the "important role women play in administering many aspects surrounding homelife" and women as the key for any projects involving these urgent issues. Saimon Mix, President of the Pohnpei Farmers' Association, recognized the necessity to network and share resources and efforts for the common good of Pohnpei and wholeheartedly supports the work of PWC and IFCP. Both partners declared their support for the recent Executive Directive by the Governor of Pohnpei outlining the urgency of the NCD crisis.

This year's projects to be implemented by IFCP and partner agencies will continue with awareness raising on nutritional benefits of local foods to combat the NCD epidemic and will also focus on food processing for this end. IFCP research has discovered that one of the barriers to consuming local food is the preparation time and availability of readily available local food products. Market research has also shown there is a lot of food wastage. These surplus and unmarketable raw products can be processed and preserved for food security and economic benefits to the producers rather than left to spoil. Furthermore, local alternatives to imported processed foods are generally much healthier and certainly more beneficial to the local and global environment. Two examples of this are breadfruit, dried and processed into flour and fruit dried into snacks for children. There are many more.

By strategically planning with community partners the objectives for IFCP activities, IFCP can then identify suitable funding agencies from the government and international sources. Our vision is to live on an island where, with self-respect and dignity, people are actively producing and utilizing locally grown foods while preserving cultural values, improving health, achieving sustainable economic development, ensuring a healthy environment and achieving food security. We know that with our community partnerships and the right funding support we can achieve this vision and be proud of a healthier Pohnpei in the future.

Use a Let's Go Local bag for your shopping!

By April Turner

Island Food Community of Pohnpei

Did you know that there is a ban on plastic bags in Pohnpei? Did you know it takes thousands of years for plastic to breakdown?

Island Food Community of Pohnpei, thanks to the Rotary Club of Pohnpei, has recently produced a very high quality, strong reusable shopping bag. This bag is designed for people to use when purchasing local foods or carrying local foods from farm to table in an effort to Go Green. The advantages of using this bag include a reduction in plastic bag pollution, promotion of the Go Local campaign, and multi-functional use for heavy items.

IFCP Chair Adelino Lorens presents bag to donor Rotary Club of Pohnpei President John Schroer

The bags will be available during our awareness activities and community projects. A small number are also available at IFCP and selected locations for $10 to cover the costs that IFCP contributed to producing the bags.

Special appreciation to the Rotary Club of Pohnpei Small Grants Scheme for making this happen.

Problems with plastic bags

- Non-renewable resources used for production of plastic bags (petroleum/oil)
- Expense of land-fill management
- Plastic bags do not biodegrade, they photo-degrade and break into smaller toxic pieces
- Manufacture of plastic bags contributes to global warming, pollution and release of highly toxic chemicals
- Carbon footprint of transportation of plastic bags
- Thousands of years to breakdown
- Chemicals leaching into the soil (lead, cadmium, other toxins)
- Danger to plants, animals, waterways and soil

...Trafficking

The Day was a culmination of awareness raising sessions in high schools across the country. In support of the National Campaign organized by DoJ, the MRC and IOM conducted educational sessions for almost 5,000 high school students on the risks of human trafficking. To measure the level of effectiveness of the campaign the FSM Government supported a poster contest, in which students were asked to depict human trafficking through their own drawings. There were many entries, particularly from the State of Kosrae and while the majority of the posters were very good, certain posters stood out and winners were selected from each state. Interstate winners were flown to Pohnpei and all four were presented with certificates from President Mori at the Spanish Wall. The Day concluded at the Wall with the Official Anti-Human Trafficking Day Softball Match, played between the FSM DoJ and the coalition of IOM and the MRC. The DoJ team proved too strong winning by several home runs with the help of some impressive batting from the Attorney-General herself; however the IOM/MRC team won the prize for robust women's representation. Both teams look forward to a friendly re-match in the near future.
